Bekalu Endrias

Software developer

As a software engineering student at Jimma University and a participant in the ALX/Holberton software engineering course, I have developed strong programming and problem-solving skills in multiple languages and web development. I am an independent and deep thinker who adapts quickly to new challenges. While I am an introvert, I also enjoy socializing and collaborating with others. Although I am currently a student and do not have work experience yet, I am eager to gain experience and apply my skills.
